INTRODUCTION

The journal, "Enhancing Legal English Proficiency: Strategies for Law Students," discusses the importance of mastering legal English for law students in the era of globalization. In an increasingly international legal world, English language skills are crucial for understanding legal documents, communicating, and participating in the global legal system. Legal English has specific characteristics, such as technical vocabulary, complex sentence structures, and the use of specific terms. Therefore, appropriate learning strategies are required for law students to master it effectively. The purpose of this journal is to identify effective strategies for improving students' legal English skills and emphasize the importance of cultural competence in the learning process.

RESEARCH METHOD

The method used in this journal is a qualitative descriptive approach based on literature review. The author reviews various theories and previous research to formulate effective strategies for improving law students' legal English skills.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

This journal explains various strategies to improve law students' legal English skills.

First, students are encouraged to frequently read various legal texts such as court decisions, statutes, and legal journals to become familiar with legal terminology and language styles. Furthermore, students need to analyze these texts to gain a deeper understanding of the legal meaning and context. Second, writing skills are also a key focus. Students are trained to write various legal documents such as memos, contracts, and legal briefs through workshops and exercises. Peer review activities are also used to provide feedback to each other. Third, speaking skills are developed through simulations such as mock trials, negotiations, and legal case discussions. This aims to increase confidence and communication skills in a legal context.

CONCLUSION

The conclusion of this paper is that improving law students' legal English skills requires a comprehensive approach, encompassing reading, writing, speaking, and listening skills. Furthermore, the integration of cultural competency is also a crucial factor in learning. Interactive, practical, and technology-based learning strategies have been proven to help students improve their legal communication skills. Thus, law students will be better prepared to face the challenges of the global legal world.
